

Columbian Exposition Issue 1893

The collection presented herein comprises 35 years of collecting primarily with the help of a great stamp consultant Andrew Levitt. This was truly a wonderful experience, and a great opportunity for an avid stamp collector. The collection was exhibited in 1996 at Amphilex in New York City at the Biltmore hotel, as 'anonymous' through Andrew Levitt. Both pieces shown below are part of this collection. Over the years the Columbian Stamp Co. has owned and offered for sale or represented buyers of many of these items. It is fitting that Harry Hagendorf of Columbian Stamp Co. represent these items.

-Anonymous, Feb. 2009

Figure 1 shows the largest recorded Columbian stamps, $49.34 on a piece of registered package wrapper, mailed from Bangor, Maine, on February 19, 1897. Among the 25 Columbian series stamps are a strip of three of the $5.00 stamp at the bottom and a single $5.00 stamp at the top.

Fig.1 Largest recorded used multiple on package wrapper.

The Columbian Exposition Issue of 1893

In the annals of postal history, the Columbian Issue stands out as a monument in this country's 150-year history of postage stamps. From the controversy surrounding their issue in 1893 (centered mostly on the then high-dollar face value of the set) and their inherent exquisite design as America's first commemorative issue...to their legend as being perhaps the most highly sought after set of stamps in American philately, the "Columbians" offer beauty, specialization and rarity.

Less than two decades after their city virtually burned to the ground in the Great Chicago Fire of 1875, the citizens of the Midwest's teeming metropolis set out to not only rebuild, but prove to the world that Chicago was a milestone in commercial and industrial progress. Thus, the World Columbian Exposition was staged on the shores of Lake Michigan—honoring not only the 400th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America, but America, itself...and its preeminence in human development.

No human endeavor—during or after that Exposition—serves to better commemorate that event than this great set of stamps.

This exhibit represents selected pages from the most comprehensive collection ever formed of this issue.

Columbian stamps used on January 1, 1893, a Sunday, the first official day of use for this issue, represent great rarities since only the main post offices in New York City and Boston were open for stamp sales. 1-Cent Jan. 1 FDC from "Burger Correspondence."

With the first day falling on a Sunday, the next day, Monday, January 2, 1893, is also recognized as a first day for this issue—especially at the Exposition, itself. Two 1-cent issues pay domestic letter rate on this FDC from Chatham, Mass. on Jan. 2.

Fig. 23B 1947 P.F. Certificate for Used Four Cent Error of Color.
Reference from 'Brookman, on 4 cent stamp:

One of the most valuable 19th century U. S. stamps is this 4c stamp in blue, that has long been listed and recognized as an error of color. I agree that it is worth the high price it commands but often wonder what the price would be if it were recognized only as a fine shade variation. Error or shade? The answer to "What's in a name?" may be found here.

Many collectors have thought they had the 4c Error of color but the truth of the matter is that few of them ever have or ever will see one—let alone own one. The shade is very different from the normal ultramarine and once seen it is not likely to be forgotten. The usual statement that it is like the color of the 1c is not exactly accurate. It is much more like the 1c than it is the normal 4c but, if such a phrase means anything, the color seems to be a richer and more lively color than that of the 1c.

One error pane was found by J. V. Painter of Cleveland and bore the plate number D17. It is almost certain that at least one more pane of these existed in this shade and that the used copies came from this other pane. We understand that Theodore Steinway of New York found a used copy on mail received by his father. When J. V. Painter found the sheet he sold half of it to George Worthington while most of the balance was purchased by J. W. Scott, Sr. It is not known what became of the half sheet sold to Worthington as these were not found among his stamps when his estate was sold.

A superb mint block of this 4c error was in the Col. Green Collection and there was a very fine mint block of 4—not the same block as was in the Green Collection—that was sold at the Robt. Laurence Sale of September 17, 1940. We have seen a third block of four in a western collection and have seen several mint singles but we have never seen a used copy although they are known to exist. An Imprint Plate Number strip of 4 of the error was sold by Harmer,

Certificate 101 170

In the expertizing of the stamps and covers of almost every country it can be helpful not only to be familiar with the philatelic technicalities of paper, printing methods, perforations, etc. It can also sometimes lend crucial insight to know something of the politics, economics and international relations of the period. Of no country is this truer than of Samoa, a group of islands east of Fiji and midway between Honolulu and Sydney, Australia.

Anthropologists believe that Polynesians reached Samoa about 1000 B.C. A bold, seafaring, warlike people, they continued in the next 1500 years or so to spread over the Pacific Islands, keeping Samoa as their home base. By the 19th century, U.S. missionaries, planters and merchants arrived in Samoa, settling chiefly in the area of Pago Pago harbor. The British settlers of about
